However, according to the textbook, "Religions in the Modern World", after the death of Roop Kanwar on her husband's funeral pyre in 1987, thousands saw this as cruel murder. Committing sati was then made a crime, with consequences worse than murder. Another historical practice observed among women in Hinduism, was the Rajput practice of Jauhar, particularly in Rajasthan and Madhya Pradesh ...

Unlike other major world religions, Hinduism does not have a single founding text or individual. Instead Hinduism is regarded by historians as a synthesis of many philosophical and religious traditions originating in India. This means that followers of Hinduism ascribe to a variety of religious doctrines and practices. Hindus generally consider these different doctrines and practices to be ...
